At the UST Museum, Madame Chan-o-cha and her group were met by UST Museum Director, Rev. Fr. Isidro C. Abaño, OP. Ms. Maita Oebanda, the UST Museum Collection Management and Documentation Assistant assisted during the tour.

At the visit to the UST Chapel, Fr. Miranda discussed its history to Mde. Chan-o-cha and answered her queries.

UST participates in 27th Inter-Ed Career Consultation and Guidance Fair

The UST Office for Admissions (OFAD) participated in the annual Career Consultation and Guidance Fair hosted by the International Education Specialists (Inter-Ed), held at the Philippine Trade Training Center in Pasay City.

For 27 years, Inter-Ed has been gathering all the best local and foreign schools in one of the largest career exhibits in the country. Partner academic institutions exhibit their programs to help students gain more perspective on the various opportunities available for them in the Philippines and abroad. The school exhibit that was held on September 14 and 15, ushered in the first batch of almost 5,000 graduating Senior High School (SHS) students from different schools in Metro Manila, Region 3 and 4.

Aside from UST, the University of the Philippines and Ateneo de Manila University also participated in the Guidance Fair. Foreign schools that participated in the exhibit were Macquarie University, James Cook University, the Cambridge School of Visual and Performing Arts and the Culinary Institute of America.

Thomasian talents performed in the Fair. Mr. John Saga, a voice major student from the UST Conservatory of Music, rendered song numbers to the delight of the students. The sophomore and junior students from the College of Fine Arts and Design (CFAD), showcased their talents in face and skin painting. Also assisting OFAD were the UST Yellow Jackets together with the Painting Department of CFAD.

Inter-Ed is considered the pioneer study abroad center in the country and has placed over 7,000 students in schools all over the globe. Since its founding in the 1980s, Inter-Ed has assisted more than 110 UST graduates to pursue further studies overseas. Inter-Ed links with top universities across continents, and assists students in every aspect of their application, from free visa assistance to career planning.

CRS students undergo internship at St. Louis College in Bangkok

Three students in their fifth year under the Physical Therapy program of the College of Rehabilitation Sciences were sent as representatives to St. Louis College (SLC) in Bangkok, Thailand, to participate in the Global Internship Experience Program (GIE).

The delegation, led by faculty member Ms. Jordan Barbra Nava, included students Arran Enriquez, Eileen Dianne Espiritu, and Bianca Maurice Go. The delegation was met by St. Louis College President Prof. Emeritus Chitr Sithiamorn, Vice President Sr. Margarita Kitcharoen, and school administrator Assoc. Prof. Oraphun Lueboonthavatchai as well as members of the Faculty of Physical Therapy headed by Asst. Prof. Pakavalee Poomsu-tat.

Prof. Emeritus Sithiamorn envisions the partnership between UST and SLC as a preliminary step towards a unified ASEAN, in which knowledge and practices are shared freely. He hopes that SLC and UST together can heed their calling to serve the people, following Ephesians 4:4 -- "There is one body and one Spirit—just as you were called to the one hope that belongs to your call" -- in which "the [human] body is treated as a whole, and [the physical therapists] providing hope to not only to their clients and patients, but also to their colleagues in the profession.

They observed the similarities and differences of physical therapy practices in the Philippines and Thailand, which include both clinical and community settings. Nava delivered a lecture about health behavior modification in the context of health promotion to physical therapy students of SLC.

The students learned about physical therapy techniques and practices that are being applied in Thailand. Learning activities involved collaboration with Thai students, with activities alternating between the classroom, identified hospitals, and the community. The community activities were held in Suphunburi province, an agricultural area which is about 200 km away from Bangkok. Activities in Suphunburi are primarily about health promotions and house visits to assess and treat patients. SLC will send representatives to participate in the GIE on January 2018.

The UST representatives conduct their practical learning activity and assist a child from the Suphunburi province.

Geriatric care, school-based Occupational Therapy form part of OT interns' Seton Hall University experience

Dominique Danielle Ong and Claudette Anne Aytona, who are both in the fifth year level of the Occupational Therapy program under the UST College of Rehabilitation Sciences, participated in the student exchange program between the University of Santo Tomas and the Seton Hall University in New Jersey, USA from September 30 to October 30, 2017. They were accompanied by Mr. Charles Bermejo, a faculty member of the Department of Occupational Therapy.

During their first week of exposure, the students sat in various classes under the Masters' Program in Occupational Therapy. They participated in and interacted with students from various levels in lecture and laboratory classes. The students were immersed in the different OT courses through listening to lectures on basic and applied sciences as well as participation in group activities, which was the main medium used in laboratory courses. Through the group activities, the OT interns were able to share thoughts and ideas with Seton Hall OT students regarding treatment approaches and activities presented through a hypothetical case.

Fresh from their local fieldwork exposure, the students were able to contribute a local flair in the conception and implementation of evaluation and treatment activities. Particularly interesting in these classes were their exposure to the use of the Blackboard platform in all classes wherein students can share and present group outputs prepared in class instantly to fellow students.

The SHU student experience included out of classroom experiences particularly activities that allowed the participants to access different university facilities such as the library, gym, cafeteria, church and student center. Ong and Aytona also attended student gatherings including an international student activity in which they interacted with other international students in the university.

The international exposure was not limited to in-campus activities but they were also sent to various affiliated fieldwork facilities of the department. The two interns were able to see and treat patients under supervision and assisted fellow students and OT staff in the different facilities. Treating patients in a continuing geriatric care facility was a bonus experience for the interns as this is not a common setting locally. They were also able to witness the delivery of services in such facility from acute, subacute, rehab and residential care. They were also able to observe school-based occupational therapy which is a service provided to students in schools in the US. Ong and Aytona assisted in group and individual classroom activities.

Faculty member Charles Bermejo was able to meet with various faculty members of the department, benchmarking outcomes based education platforms and strategies in preparation for the full implementation of such curriculum beginning 2018. Through various meetings with key faculty members, Bermejo gained insights in the use of outcomes based strategies from the creation of the course outline and class structure. It was noted that class structure in all of their courses is an integration of medical foundations, evaluation and treatment. Current local structure has these courses offered separately. He was also able to explore possible continuing professional development partnerships with expert faculty in Stroke Rehabilitation.

LECTURES&CONFERENCES

Arts and Letters faculty members present papers on social sciences, history, literature, philosophy for children at international conferences

Faculty members from the Faculty of Arts and Letters participated in international and national conferences through paper presentations, participation in panel discussions and workshop held in Thailand, the Philippines and the USA.

Department of Literature faculty members, Assoc. Prof. Luciana L. Urquiola, Ph.D., Prof. Felicidad G. Perena, Ph.D., Prof. Roberto DL. Ampil, Ph.D., Asst. Prof. Ma. Eloisa D. Sevilla-Perez, Asst. Prof. Elenita Mendoza and Ms. Kristine May D. Martinez, presented papers during the 2017 Salinan International Conference held from September 28 to 30, 2017 at the Ateneo de Manila University.

The three-day global conference was organized by the Filipinas Institute of Translation (FIT) in collaboration with the Komisyon sa Wikang Filipino (KWF) and National Commission for Culture and the Arts (NCCA). Translation experts and educators from different countries including the Philippines were invited as guest speakers.

Speakers were Dr. Lawrence Venuti (Temple University), Dr. Luise Von Flotow (University of Ottawa) and Dr. Virgilio S. Almario (Commission on the Filipino Language) (CFL) and the National Commission for Culture and the Arts (NCCA).

Malay World Conference, Philippines

History Department faculty member Asst. Prof. Janet Atutubo presented a paper on the "Struggles for Independence of the Filipinos and Malays: A Common People's Perspective" at the Malay World Conference at the Manila Hotel and De la Salle University Manila held from September 14 to 16, 2017.

Topics discussed during the Conference were: Archeology, History, Sociology and Philosophy of South East Asia. The conference was well attended by faculty members of various universities in Malaysia, Singapore, Brunei Darussalam, China, America and Indonesia. Asst. Prof. Myrna De Vera was also a participant.

Institute of Religion faculty member Mr. Leo-Martin Ocampo presented a paper on 'Building Bridges of Consensus and Openness: Gems from Humanistic Buddhism and Fo Guang Shan' during the 4th Humanistic Buddhism Youth Forum at Fo Guang Shan Temple held in Singapore from October 27 to 29, 2017. The forum, with the theme: 'Consensus and Openness' aimed to build more awareness especially on the youth about the importance of collaborative work between world religions. Ocampo also presented his literary piece: 'The Day I Met Consensus and Openness.' The forum was attended by representatives from ten countries. Ocampo also translated to Filipino Laudato Si, Pope Francis' encyclical on the care of environment.

Megan Laverty and Ariel Sykes. All four facilitators were trained by Matthew Lipman and Ann Margaret Sharp who are founders of Philosophy for Children.

The week-long workshop discussed topics such as the philosophical and historical foundations of Philosophy for Children, hermeneutics of P4C, Philosophy of Childhood, Aesthetics and P4C, to name a few. Participants were also given the opportunity to facilitate a community of inquiry using Matthew Lipman's philosophical novels.

The community of inquiry is used as classroom pedagogy in various schools worldwide, and as evidenced by research, this pedagogy has increased the students' ability to think critically, creatively and caringly.

Asia-Pacific Youth Exchange Program, Bangkok & South Korea

Two Asian Studies students John Jethro L. Manangan of the Department of History, and Junella Marie Padro, participated in the Asia Pacific Youth Exchange (APYE) program in Bangkok, Thailand and South Korea.

The APYE program is a regional youth program that responds to the global needs of the young people by actively engaging them in localized Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) initiatives through the Social Enterprise Model (Thailand) and the concept of Sustainable Tourism (South Korea). Held in two different countries this year, the youth program consisted of the following components – the Leadership Development Training (LDT), Local Immersion, and Youth Symposium.

Under the Leadership Training, delegates gained insights about the relevance and implementation of the UN SDGs, and prepared them to lead efforts that tackle the SDGs in their own communities. Local Immersion activities exposed delegates to current SDG initiatives, in partnership with communities and NGOs. Meanwhile, the Youth Symposium which showcased the delegates' initiative, connected to each SDG's implementation after their immersion.

Manangan, who attended both regional youth programs in Bangkok, Thailand and in South Korea, participated in leadership development trainings, immersions and site visitations. Together with delegates from different countries, Manangan learned and honed skills necessary to participate in SDG activities.

Padro, who attended the APYE in Incheon and Jeollabuk-do, South Korea participated in youth community development activities and collaborative forum for delegates. Together with other young leaders, Padro familiarized and committed herself to Sustainable Development goals within tourism by

Harvard Project on Asian and International Relations, Australia

Meanwhile, fourth year Communications Arts student Audrey Anne Albios participated as delegate in the Harvard Project on Asian and International Relations (HPAIR) 2017 Asian Conference held from at the International Convention Centre at Darling Harbour, Sydney, Australia. The Conference was a partnership between the University of Sydney and Harvard University's Project for Asian and International Relations. It was attended by prominent academics and practitioners in the fields of Business and World Economy, Entrepreneurship and Technology, Environment and Sustainability, Security and Diplomacy, Health and Social Policy, and Humanitarian Affairs.

Albios, a delegate under the Security and Diplomacy Track, attended panel discussions on diplomacy, sustainability, and trade patterns of ASEAN Nations and toured the Mac Arthur Center for Sustainable Living and the University of Sydney. Since 1991, the annual HPAIR has been organizing forums of exchange and has been facilitating discussions of the most important economic, political, and social issues relevant to the Asia-Pacific region among scholars and students within the region.

United Nations General Assembly, Jakarta Model United Nations

Elijen Love U. Saez, Martin Jasper S. San Pedro, and Lennard Ashey I. Tayco students under the Department of Economics were delegates to the Conference of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) in the Jakarta Model United Nations (JMUN) held at the Unibersitas Bakrei, Indonesia. Its theme was "Towards Sustainable Future: Eradicating Inequality and Securing Global Threats."

Saez was awarded "Best Position Paper" by the Economic and Financial Affairs Council (ECOFIN) during the closing ceremony while Tayco was awarded Third Best Delegate by the Economic and Finance Committee.

The Conference aimed to contribute comprehensively to the participants by expanding their knowledge on economic growth and development towards the attainment of the Sustainable Development Goals pioneered by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

UST ITSO participates in WIPO-IPOPHI trainings on Patent analytics, drafting

Participants of the Patent Analytics (from left): Mr. Jackson Tan from the College of Commerce and Business Administration, Dr. Alice Aguinaldo from the College of Science, Assoc. Prof. Michael Peralta from the ITSO, Mr. Paul Oldham, who is the course speaker, and Ms. Irene Kitsara from the WIPO

The University, through the Innovation and Technology Support Office (ITSO), participated in the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) and Intellectual Property Office of the Philippines (IPOPHI) – organized capacity building programs to assist the ITSOs in their advocacy and efficient use of the IP system.

A training on “Patent Drafting Course and Mentoring Session” was held from November 13 to 17, 2017 at the Department of Science and Technology (DOST) Philippine Council for Agriculture, Aquatic, and Natural Resources Research and Development (PCAARD), Los Baños, Laguna. UST participants included Mr. Romano Macaisa of the College of Fine Arts and Design and Assoc. Prof. Peralta.

An earlier training, which was actually the first training, was on “Patent Analytics” held from November 7 to 10, 2017 at the Multipurpose Hall of the IPOPHI, McKinley Hill, Taguig City which was participated in by Prof. Alicia Aguinaldo, Ph.D., of the College of Science, Mr. Jackson Tan of the College of Commerce, and Assoc. Prof. Michael Jorge Peralta, UST ITSO Manager.

These capacity building trainings were part of the WIPO-IPOPHI Hub and Spoke Project where selected universities were taught the different aspects of IP from protection to technology transfer.

The Patent Analytics provided participants with the knowledge and hands-on preparation of a patent landscape report and taught them to perform patent analytics using different professional tools and other resources which enabled interpretation of patent information as well as crafting visualizations for orderly reporting.

The Patent Drafting course sought to increase the patent drafting skills of personnel of ITSOs in order to empower them to draft patent specifications of their projects that qualify the patentability criteria.

PT alumna talks on Cervicothoracic Dysfunction treatment, approaches through Manual Therapy at UST forum

Ms. Alreen Day Alfonso, a physical therapist specializing in Orthopedic Rehabilitation at Maryland, USA, shared her expertise about the current and evidence-based assessment and treatment techniques in managing patients with cervicothoracic dysfunction in a forum held on September 30, 2017 at the University. Different teaching strategies were employed by Alfonso to ensure that the 91 licensed physical therapists and 135 physical therapy interns in the audience were updated on the current trends of practice in the profession.

Alfonso is a former staff physical therapist of the University of Santo Tomas Hospital – Apolinario Mabini Rehabilitation Center (USTH-AMRC) and a graduate of the then Institute of Physical Therapy. The forum was organized by the Department of Physical Therapy as part of its continuing education program for its students, graduates and fellow professionals.

UST Publishing House joins country’s biggest book fair

USTPH Director Asst. Prof. Ma. Aiil Alvarez with historian and author Ambeth Ocampo (Talking History and A Calendar of Rizaliana) at the USTPH booth during the 38th Manila International Book Fair.

The UST Publishing House (USTPH) joined authors, readers, and other publishers in the Philippines’ biggest book event, the 38th Manila International Book Fair (MIBF), held at the SMX Convention Center, Mall of Asia Complex, Pasay City.

For the MIBF’s 2017 edition, the USTPH gave readers a chance to meet their favorite Filipino authors. Renowned authors Cristina Pantoja Hidalgo (To Remember to Remember and Filipino Woman Writing), Edgar Calabia Samar (Maskara’t Pambata, Halos Isang Buhay, and Sa Kasunod ng 909), Augusto Antonio Aguila (Carnival of Hate and The Heart of Need), Jaime An Lim (Auguries and Peace Mindanao), and Joel Pablo Salud (The Distance of Rhymes and Other Tragedies and The Chief is in the House) signed copies of their books for readers and fans.

Aside from the book signing events, the USTPH offered discounts on both textbooks and trade books.

According to Publishing House Director Ma. Aiil Alvarez, aside from representing the University in the event, the USTPH booth has become a “site of congregation for book-loving Thomasians.”

“We can say the booth has become a site of congregation for book-loving Thomasians (students, faculty, and alumni alike) who frequent the Fair on a yearly basis, while other walk-in customers are drawn to our booth because of the name the University carries,” Alvarez said.

“UST’s presence in the MIBF also validates and strengthens the USTPH’s commitment to the dissemination of higher knowledge by producing outstanding works of scholarly and literary value, in alliance with the University’s mission of education.”

The director also shared that the USTPH plans to carry official UST merchandise in the booth for next year’s MIBF “to provide customers with a variety of items and to expand their buying options.”

The MIBF is the largest and longest-running book event in the Philippines and has been a venue of exchange for the publishing and academic industry. It is also a much-awaited event for readers and book enthusiasts.
