CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Academia Christmas Issue 2018

The Christmas season gives us that truly wonderful ‘thrill of hope’ which allows us to anticipate and be grateful for ‘a new morning’ that will come to totally dispel the gloom that afflicts us. Christmas is a time that provides us with the wonderful opportunity to share the many blessings that God has given us. It also evokes the incomparable feeling of peace and joy in our hearts because we have more time to spend with our loved ones and friends. But more importantly, it is an occasion that allows us to reflect on what is truly important – the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Savior of Mankind, the main reason why we celebrate the most wonderful time of the year.

The special Christmas issue of the Academia has for its cover the UST Main Building which is set against a backdrop that highlights the annual Paskuhan festivities in which we see the iconic structure radiantly adorned with Christmas trimmings, colorful lights, and dazzling effects from the highly-anticipated fireworks display which caps the evening’s festivities. All these contribute to the joyful spirit that abounds in the University during the Christmas season. The cover of the Academia does not only speak of the wonderful tradition that defines our celebration of Christmas in the campus, it is also very symbolic of the glorious morn that we eagerly await and anticipate the birth of Jesus which gives us genuine hope to aspire for things ideal and beautiful.

Christmas is just a few days away. Once again, this joyous season fills our hearts with such profound gladness. There is no other love that can compare to God’s love for mankind for he sent his only son to save us from our sins, and this is what the world celebrates every year which signifies the truth and reality of our faith which inspires us always to share, to hope, and to believe. As we flip through the pages of the Academia, the official international bulletin of the University of Santo Tomas, we will have a very good idea of the vibrant life in our beloved University where academics, administrators, students, alumni, and support staff traverse various exciting and cutting-edge trajectories that contribute tremendously to the tradition of excellence the University is known for. UST's month-long Paskuhan celebration features lighting ceremony, Christmas concert

To mark the beginning of the annual Christmas traditions of the University of Santo Tomas, the historic campus in Manila was transformed with lights fit for a unique holiday experience. With the theme of "light from Light: Prince of Peace," the campus decorations were lit on December 3, 2018, at 5:30 p.m.

The Cross atop the UST Main Building tower that symbolizes the Light that is Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, from whom all other lights originate, became more prominent with the lighting. With a 70-foot Christmas tree shining at the UST Grandstand like a beacon in campus, around 600 lanterns illuminated the grounds of the 407-year old University.

A total of 600,000 LED lights brightened the campus each night, with the Christmas tree itself decorated by hundreds of assorted ornaments, 80 lanterns, and 100 PAR lamps, which gave the tree a Royal purple glow. A large stylized image of the Holy Family also graced the Quadracentennial Park near the interactive fountain.

The decorations were lit in synchronization with the musical accompaniment "A Thrill of Hope," adapted from O Holy Night by Adolphe Adam, and culminated with a fireworks display.

"The essence of Christmas to the Thomasian community"

Rev. Fr. Jesús M. Miranda, Jr., O.P., Secretary-General

Christmas is a beautiful story, filled with wonderful images that resonate from generations to generations. One compelling plot in the story is the birth of Christ into the world which clearly embodies God's continuing promise of unending love for humanity.

Every year, the University of Santo Tomas rekindles among the Thomasian community this Christmas story through creative yet relevant themes, reawakening in them the gift of faith through deep reflection on the gift of presence and the gift of sharing one's self to others.

In the year 1993, Paskuhan was first adopted by the University, through the leadership of UST Treasurer, Rev. Fr. Tereso Campillo, O.P., as an encompassing name of month-long Christmas festivities in the University. The celebration with the theme "Paskong Tomasino, Paskong Filipino" marked the University's move to make itself become movers of young men and women in helping our countrymen, especially those affected by typhoon "Uring". Since then, the University remained steadfast in its commitment in community development and Tulong Tomasino projects.

Some of the themes in the previous years include "Pagdiriwang ng Pananampalataya" (Paskuhan 2012), "Pasko sa Puso Ko - To Visayas We Give, To Visayas We Share" (Paskuhan 2013), "Pagdiriwang ng Pagmamalasakit - Tomasino Kaisa ni Papa Francisco at ng Simbahan sa Pasko" (Paskuhan 2014), "A Thomasian Celebration of Christmas and the Jubilees of Mercy and the 800th Dominican Foundation Year" (Paskuhan 2015), "Paskong Tomasino para sa 'yo'" (Paskuhan 2016), "King of Kings" (Paskuhan 2017).

For this year, the University Events Committee, through the headship of the Secretary-General, brainstormed and deliberated on a theme that closely intertwines proposals coming from representatives of the student body – the Central Student Council and the Student Organization and Coordinating Council and that of the committee. The University Events Committee is composed of the heads of the Office of Student Affairs, Facilities Management Office, Communications Bureau, Office of Public Affairs, Campus Ministry, Health Service, Security Office, Office of the Property Custodian, Deans of the Conservatory of Music and Tourism and Hospitality Management, Asst. Prof. Rodolfo Olaso, Ar. Froilan Fontecha, and Engr. Albert Surla.

The finalized theme of UST's Paskuhan 2018 "light from Light, Prince of Peace" conveys to the Thomasian community that Jesus is the Light that comes to life and the one who inspires us to become light that illuminates the path of others. He is our Prince that brings Peace to mankind.

While mankind joyfully waits for the coming of the Light that gives light to our paths, it is hoped that the Christmas celebration leads the Thomasian community to endeavor to become the best persons that they could be, as their humble share in committing their individual or collective roles in supporting the University in its trifold ministry of Thomasian education, research and community organizing and development. Similarly, it comes with a prayer that the Prince of Peace would guide the community in its day-to-day endeavors, so that man may serve and always think of what is good for his neighbor, the Church, and the nation.

Rev. Fr. Jesús M. Miranda, Jr., O.P., is the Secretary-General of the University of Santo Tomas. He holds a doctorate in Educational Leadership and Management (ELM) and teaches at the Graduate School of UST and the ELM Department of the Bro. Andrew Gonzalez, FSC-College of Education of De La Salle University-Manila.

The Ambassador also highlighted the diplomatic relationship between the Philippines and Korea, which dates back to 1949. "Korean and Philippine bilateral relations is rooted in history," said Ambassador Han. "A total of 7,420 Filipino soldiers who were part of the Philippine Expeditionary Force to Korea (PEFTOK) fought gallantly in the Korean War... This experience opened the door for Korea and the Philippines to forge a unique and lasting friendship," he further explained.

In 2019, the Philippines and Korea will celebrate their 70th year of diplomatic relations. Ambassador Han assured the participants of the continued strength of the Philippine-Korean relationship and of ROK's sustained support of the Philippines through investments in tourism and education, among other areas.

Among the contributions of the ROK to the Philippines include: the Araw Contingent, the first and largest peacetime operation unit dispatched by ROK to Leyte for one year to conduct aid, relief, and rehabilitation operations; a donation of five million pesos to the Philippine Red Cross for the benefit of those affected by the armed conflict in Marawi; and more than 130 patrol cars for the use of the Philippine National Police.

The Republic of Korea remains the fourth largest trading partner of the Philippines, the third largest import source, and the fifth highest export destination of the Philippines.

H.E. Han Dong-man

Having began his tour of duty in the Philippines on January 17, 2018, Ambassador Han brings with him more than 30 years of experience in inter-Korean diplomatic relations.

Currently serving as the Ambassador of the Republic of Korea, he joined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1985 after earning a master's degree in law at the Pantheon-Sorbonne University in Paris, France. Since then, he has held posts in Algeria, the United Kingdom, and Australia, and the Office of the President in Korea. In 2002, he served as the Director of the Security Policy Division at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, and as Consul at the Korean Consulate General in New York. More recently, he served as the Minister Counselor at the Korean Embassy in Washington, D.C., and Consul-General at the Korean Consulate in San Francisco.

Prior to his assignment in Manila, Ambassador Han was the Director-General for International Economic Affairs at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, Consulate General of the Republic of Korea.

can participate in an open forum to engage with the lecturing diplomats.

The first lecture in the series was delivered on April 16, 2015, by then Deputy Head of Mission of the Embassy of France to the Philippines Mr. Laurent Le Godec. He lectured on the commitment of France in fighting climate change. This lecture coincided with France's hosting of COP21 in December 2015.

The second lecture was on "The Church and the Modern World" held on April 18, 2016 by Vice Chancellor Francis Campbell of St. Mary's University in London who once served as the British Ambassador to the Holy See.

The third lecture, along with a dialogue with Thomasian students on international affairs and public policy, was delivered by former American Ambassador to the Philippines, H.E. Philip S. Goldberg on April 16, 2016.

The fourth lecture focused on the dynamics of foreign relations in Philippine Economics, discussed on April 5, 2017, by H.E. Carlos Salinas, the Philippine Ambassador to Spain.

The most recent discourse was held almost a month before the ASEAN Summit was held in the Philippines. The speaker was the Minister and Deputy Chief of Mission of the Royal Thai Embassy in Manila Ms. Urawadee Sriphiromya, who discussed on October 24, 2017 learning mobility in the context of ASEAN Integration.

As a token of appreciation for delivering a lecture, diplomats are each given an art piece as a gift of gratitude in the form of a Joe Datuin sculpture called the "UST Fusion Series." Datuin, an international artist who graduated from the UST College of Fine Arts and Design in 1977, is now a noted and multi-awarded Olympic artist/sculptor. His award-winning works include, among others, the Moscow Olympic Poster Design in 1980 and the UNESCO International Calendar Design Competition in France in 1982. The Dancing Rings, his most celebrated art work so far, won first prize in the sculpture category of the Olympic Sports and Art Design Contest in 2008.

The lighting ceremony followed the Eucharistic Celebration with the UST Vice Rector Rev. Fr. Richard G. Ang, O.P., as main presider, concelebrated with Dominican priests.

In Fr. Ang's homily, he noted how family members have a sense of similarity beyond the physical appearances dictated by shared genetics. This resemblance in manner, borne from time spent together, is instilled in people. He urged the faithful to be with God constantly, because "When we spend time with God, we become more like him. We become peacemakers."

The Vice Rector further explained, "Jesus never promised that [peace is] going to be easy, but the peace He offers is the kind of peace that will allow us to experience serenity in the face of all circumstances that would cause us pressure... Peace that comes from God is not reliant on our strength or on our surroundings. It comes from grace which transforms and leads us to wholeness and reconciliation. We become less self-centered, and we reach out to another in the same way the Lord treats us - with kindness, with compassion, with understanding... More than ever, Jesus really is the Prince of Peace."

Fr. Ang concluded his homily by saying, "On behalf of the Father Rector and all the Dominican Fathers of UST, I wish you peace, because whenever I do that, I am wishing you life, good health, prosperity, harmony, and all of God's favor. These are the bountiful blessings of Christmas."

Mass donations and offerings were earmarked to support Tulong Tomasino projects.

After the lighting ceremony, members of the Thomasian community shared the annual Christmas feast called the "Agape."

A Community in Song for the Prince of Peace

The Thomasian community was serenaded with joyful Christmas carols in its Christmas Concert on December 4, 2018, 7:00 p.m., held at the Santísimo Rosario Parish (UST Chapel).

The 2018 UST Christmas Concert featured homegrown Thomasian talents from the UST Conservatory of Music, including the UST Symphony Orchestra. Also featured in the concert were Austria-based renowned Tenor Abdul Candao, who has performed in concerts in more than 10 countries, Maestra Irma P.E. Potenciano, who is considered the only Filipino to record with the London Philharmonic Orchestra and has starred in 13 full-length opera productions and five sarswela. Choirs from partner communities of UST, such as the Parents Advocate for Visually Impaired Children's Choir (PAVIC), and the Aeta Community Children's Choir, also joined the musical spectacle.

UST Secretary-General Rev. Fr. Jesús M. Miranda, Jr., O.P., who also serves as Chair of the Permanent Committee for Events, delivered a welcome message during the program, saying that, "Tonight's Christmas Concert is truly a manifestation of Thomasian oneness in mission, unity in purpose and solidarity in action in this season of love and peace."

Fr. Miranda also reminded the community to stand firm in their values, especially in this season of giving. He said, "While we joyfully wait for the coming of the Light that gives light to our paths, may we endeavor to become the best person that we could be as our humble share in committing our individual or collective roles in supporting the University in its trifold ministry of education, research, and community organizing and development. Let the Prince of Peace be our guide in our day-to-day endeavors, serving and always thinking of what is good for our neighbor, the Church, and our nation."

Among the songs that were performed include: "Vissi D'Arte" from the Opera "Tosca" sung by soprano Maestra Irma P.E. Potenciano, accompanied by the UST Symphony Orchestra. The UST Conservatory of Music Hip Hop Dance Quintet, with ballet mentor Minette Caryl Maza and the UST String Quintet, re-imagined Tchaikovsky's classic score "The Nutcracker" though hip-hop choreography. A Jazz Christmas Medley was also presented by the UST Conservatory of Music Jazz Band under conductor Ayman Linzag, and sung by Mary Patrice Pacis, Praise Ashonibare, Faye Yupano, and Demi Fresco.

The Grand Choir of UST also presented a Filipino Christmas Medley arranged by Prof. Herminigildo G. Ranera, Ph.D. The Grand Choir consists of members from

PACUCOA recognizes UST for highest number of accredited programs; cites University for international recognitions

UST is once again recognized by the Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities Commission on Accreditation (PACUCOA) as the top university in the Philippines in terms of academic program quality assurance. This recognition was held in an awarding ceremony on December 4, 2018 at the Novotel Manila Araneta Center in Quezon City during the PACUCOA 29th general assembly with the theme “Quality Assurance in the 4th Industrial Revolution.”

Bagging a total of ten awards and citations, UST was acknowledged for having the highest number of accredited programs in the National Capital Region and in the Philippines as well as being the University with the highest number of accredited programs under Level IV status in the country.

The University also garnered special citations for producing graduates who obtained the highest rating in their respective licensure exams, specifically for Architects, Certified Public Accountants, and Medical Technologists for this year.

Great War and gave the example of Filipino soldier Private Tomas Claudio, who served with the U.S. Army as part of the American Expeditionary Forces to Europe.

The Great War involved many soldiers from five different continents, including Asia, as the exhibit abstract showed. In particular, the Philippines created the Philippine National Guard in 1917 to join the American Expeditionary Force as it fought under the command of Gen. John Pershing, as explained by Dr. De Viana.

Ambassador of the Kingdom of Belgium to the Philippines His Excellency Michel Philippe Goffin marked the opening of the exhibition with a message, and said, “What we want to show you [in this exhibition] are the lesser known stories of thousands of young men of different nationalities and ethnicities, who contributed their efforts, who were enlisted, who volunteered in World War I.”

The Ambassador also urged participants to keep in mind that, “There is a collective obligation [for us] to remember the War, those who fought, and that the World created the United Nations so that countries can avoid another World War.”

Ambassador Goffin, Dr. De Viana, and UST Office of Public Affairs Director Assoc. Prof. Giovanna V. Fontanilla, Ph.D., led the ribbon-cutting ceremony that officially opened the exhibition for public viewing.

Dr. Fontanilla capped off the program by urging the participants to “be instruments of peace.”

Comm Arts alumna Uy-Koe receives inaugural ASEAN Prize for advocacy on autism inclusion

UST Communication Arts alumna Erlinda “Dang” Uy-Koe won the inaugural prize awarded by the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) for her advocacy on autism inclusion. The award was conferred upon Uy-Koe on November 13, 2018 by Singapore Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong and ASEAN Secretary-General Dato Lim Jock Hoi, during the opening ceremony of the 33rd ASEAN Summit and Related Summits in Singapore witnessed by ASEAN leaders.

The ASEAN Prize, administered by the ASEAN Secretariat, aims to recognize inspiring achievements and contributions of an individual or organization that foster the ASEAN identity, promote the ASEAN spirit, and champion the ASEAN way. In addition to a trophy, the recipient of the ASEAN Prize also received a cash prize of US$20,000. The sponsors for the ASEAN Prize 2018 were Temasek Foundation Connects of Singapore, the Ayala Corporation of the Philippines and Yayasan Hasanah of Malaysia.

Uy-Koe is chair Emeritus of Autism Society Philippines (ASP). Under her leadership, the ASP with 96 chapters nation-wide, has become one of the most vibrant disability organizations in the Philippines.

At the regional level, Uy-Koe served as chair of the ASEAN Autism Network (AAN), comprising of autism family support organizations from ASEAN member states. The AAN is a platform for member states to cooperate and unite in developing non-discriminatory programs to support persons living with autism and their families.

Having received The Outstanding Thomasian ALumni (TOTAL) Award for Humanitarian Service in 2009, Uy-Koe’s efforts have inspired autism awareness beyond the Philippines. The ASP’s “Angels Walk for Autism 2018,” gathered over 24,000 participants, with thousands more converging in simultaneous walks in ten cities. This inspired other members of AAN to hold their own Autism Walks in their respective capitals.

A member of class 1977 of the Faculty of Arts and Letters, Uy-Koe has also taken her advocacy to the international arena. Her engagements have sparked discussions on project collaborations with China and Korea. She has also served the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific’s Working Group of the Asia Pacific Decade for Persons with Disabilities for 2018-2022.

Uy-Koe was selected by ASEAN Secretary-General Dato Lim Jock Hoi, and former Secretaries-General Tan Sri Ajit Singh, Ong Keng Yong, and Le Luong Minh who comprised the Panel of Judges.

In a statement released on the Autism Society Philippines (ASP) Facebook page, Uy-Koe said, “This is a welcome blessing. For the inaugural ASEAN Prize to be awarded to a family autism advocacy shows how far the ASEAN Community has embraced inclusion for persons with autism and other special needs. I pray that this recognition will help organizations like the ASP and other members of ASEAN Autism Network to connect with policy makers and push for institutional mechanisms that will help improve the lives of those living in the autism spectrum. This inaugural ASEAN Prize honors all family advocates who work hard for the acceptance, accommodation and appreciation of people with autism. And above all, I thank God for giving us our children, for giving us a higher purpose, and for putting us together to work for one vision, one autism friendly ASEAN community. To God be the glory.”

UST launches joint web portal of academic journals

UST Secretary-General Rev. Fr. Jesus Miranda, Jr., O.P., Ph.D., delivers the welcome remarks

Responding to the global demand on higher education institutions to produce quality research outputs, the University of Santo Tomas (UST), through the Office of the Secretary-General, has created the UST Journal Affairs Committee (UJAC). Through this initiative, an aggregate portal of all the University’s peer-reviewed and indexed research journals is now available to the public. Titled “The UST Journals Online Portal,” it was officially launched by the Office of the Secretary-General and the UJAC on December 6, 2018, at the UST Paredes Building.

The UST Journal Affairs Committee is headed by the UST Secretary-General Rev. Fr. Jesús Miranda, Jr., O.P., Ph.D. It is composed of the respective chief editors of the academic journals published by the various units of the University.

Through this committee, UST aims to intensify its support for the maintenance of these journals by bringing them together in a single official online portal, providing editors technical and financial assistance, guiding editors in maintaining quality assurance, and professionalizing the respective editorial boards, among others.

Now that the various UST academic journals are under one common platform, it will be easier for researchers to access content and information about the journals, specifically the respective submission and publication policies of each publication. Moreover,

LECTURES & CONFERENCES

Carillo presents educational challenges in PH suburbs at Rome conference

Carillo shares about some University initiatives via its SIMBAHAYAN program.

UST Assistant to the Rector for Planning and Quality Management Prof. Clarita D. Carillo, Ph.D. presented her paper titled "Education and the suburbs in the Philippines and in Asia: Problems and Good Practices" at the Annual Council of the World Union of Catholic Teachers – Union Mundial de Educadores Catolicos (WUCT-UMEC) in Rome. Held from November 9 to 11, 2018, the conference focused on the theme, "Educate in the World's Peripheries: The Challenges, The Good Practices."

Carillo presented some of the latest national statistics relevant to the plight of education in the Philippines as she provided analyses particularly on the perennial challenges faced by Philippine education in the suburbs, including the shortage in facilities, shortage of teachers, lack of infrastructural support, uneven quality of education, and persistent poverty; as well as the contributing factors to such challenges. She also presented some of the initiatives at the national level to address these problems, such as the open high school program under the Alternative Learning Systems; intensified home visitation; environmental school projects; subject-area focused school programs; and collaborations with higher education institutions (HEIs) as adopted communities under community development and extensions programs.

Founded in 1950, the World Union of Catholic Teachers is an autonomous organization that works with the Congregation for Catholic Education, the Council for the Laity and the Episcopal Conferences. It also supports the rights, freedoms, and interests of Catholic teachers in the context of the social doctrine of the Church and cooperates with other international organizations involved in teaching and education, such as UNESCO, for Catholic teachers involved in formal, private, and Catholic schools.

The WUCT's three-day council was attended by delegates from Italy, France, Spain, Belgium, Germany, Holland, United Kingdom, Hungary, Congo, and the Philippines, among others.

Carillo is affiliated with the Teacher Education Department of the University of Santo Tomas College of Education and is a member of the Educational Management and Leadership Cluster of the UST Graduate School.

their application of the characteristics of the Cebuano language in order to develop a picture-naming test that will elicit the speech sounds that Cebuano-speaking 4 to 6-year old children can produce. This test is called the Cebuano Articulation Test (CAT), which speech-language pathologists will use to correctly diagnose Speech Sound Disorders in children who have Cebuano as their mother tongue or first language.

The researchers shared that CAT was valid because it had an appropriate number of items that can test the sounds in the Cebuano language. They also indicated that it is reliable because it produced very little variation between speech-language pathologist users when administered on the same child, and had very little variation of results across trials.

The conference aimed to share advances in linguistics, or the theoretical study of languages, of the Philippines. It also discussed application of linguistics in other disciplines and contexts.

Salvosa, Abugan present papers at Media Education Summit in Hong Kong

Journalism Program Coordinator Mr. Felipe F. Salvosa II and Communications Bureau Assistant Director for Broadcast Asst. Prof. Faye Martel-Abugan at the 2018 International Media Education Summit in Hong Kong Baptist University

Two faculty members from the Department of Communication and Media Studies of the Faculty of Arts and Letters presented papers at the 2018 International Media Education Summit in Hong Kong on November 1 and 2, 2018. Asst. Prof. Faye Martel-Abugan, assistant director for broadcast of the UST Communications Bureau, and Mr. Felipe F. Salvosa II, coordinator of the journalism program, were the only Filipino academics in the conference organized by the United Kingdom's Centre for Excellence in Media Practice of Bournemouth University, and hosted by the Hong Kong Baptist University.

Salvosa presented the findings of a major research project of the journalism program- the Philippine paper of the 44-country "Journalism Schools Across the Globe" survey.

The Philippine descriptive results, presented for the first time, showed that Filipino students are motivated to study journalism and have a positive outlook on their academic training. Many, however, prefer travel and lifestyle over politics and business beats, and desire to work in magazines and television rather than newspapers or news agencies. Further analysis showed that motivations have significant positive effects on roles, ethical views and perceptions of threats on the news media. "The findings underscore the important function of journalism schools in educating their students on the greater role of journalism in democratic society," the paper revealed.

The research team was led by Asst. Prof. Jeremiaah Opiniano, and faculty members Jannis Montañez and Marishelle Medina, journalism students Marie Shane Krizzia Delgado, Justine Rey Hernandez, Margaret Claire Layug, Roen Mecano, Joelle Theresa Ngo, Monica Padillo, Hazel Maye Reyes and Raymond Rocha.

Salvosa said the Philippine study, which had 1,000 respondents, was the result of a collaboration among journalism schools that became the nucleus of the newly established Philippine Journalism Studies Consortium. The consortium members include UST, Cavite State University, Bulacan State University, University of Rizal System, and the University of San Jose-Recoletos in Cebu.

Abugan discussed the learning experiences of d'CATCH participants from the University of Santo Tomas.

She also presented results from a survey conducted among students who joined d'CATCH from 2004 to 2018 on their personal insights and learning before, during and after their participation, showing how effective d'CATCH was as a practical learning project for students of communication.

As part of the "Asian media project for media literacy and cross-cultural communication in five countries," Abugan, along with Seongsoo Baeg (Kolej Universiti Islam Antarabangsa Selangor, Malaysia), Gengxin Wang, (Communication University of China) and Shin Mizukoshi (University of Tokyo, Japan), presented d'CATCH, an international project designed for media literacy and intercultural communication, through the cross-cultural collaboration of video-making and discussion about social common issues in Asia. The project, which began in 2003, has five participant universities from five countries: China, Indonesia, Japan, the Philippines and Thailand.

Shih also had the opportunity to meet with SHU faculty members Dr. Ruth Segal; the Department Chair of Occupational Therapy, Prof. Alicia MacGregor; Director of Clinical Education, Dr. Karen Hoover and Dr. Mara Podvey. UST Vice Rector for Religious Affairs Rev. Fr. Pablo T. Tiong, O.P., delivers the welcome remarks.

Fr. Teresito "Chito" Soganub writes his prayers for persecuted Christians on the prayer wall.

The University of Santo Tomas, though the UST SIMBAHAYAN Community Development Office and the UST Museum in close partnership with Aid to the Church in Need (ACN)-Philippines, mounted an exhibition of religious artifacts destroyed in conflicts with ISIS. Titled "Where God Weeps," the exhibition was opened on November 28, 2018 as part of and in time for this year's Red Wednesday Campaign and ran until December 1, 2018.

Red Wednesday is a campaign to raise awareness on the severity of Christian persecution observed through people wearing red or lighting the facades of buildings in red. UST joined this campaign for the second year and invited faculty members, students, and staff members to wear red. The UST Main Building and historic Arch of the Centuries, both National Cultural Treasures found within the Manila campus, were also lit red in support of the campaign.

Having been launched first in Rome last year, the exhibition, which travels the globe, was most recently exhibited in Portugal, and will be brought to Germany next week, said ACN-Philippines National Director Mr. Jonathan Luciano. It features artifacts mostly from Syria and Iraq, that were damaged by ISIS during their attacks. Also in the exhibition is the image of the Maria Auxiliadora (Mary, Help of Christians) de Marawi, which was defaced during the Siege. The image of the infant Jesus carried in her arms and the image's head remain missing even now.

UST Vice Rector for Religious Affairs Rev. Fr. Pablo T. Tiong, O.P., in his welcome remarks, urged participants to "Gather in solidarity [with] our persecuted fellow Christians. In prayer, we unite with them. We must find ways to help, assist, and if possible, liberate [them]."

Apart from these duties and responsibilities, a group of officers from the Police District Battalion has initiated an advocacy of helping the out-of-school youth dubbed as "Ang Guro kong Pulis," a mobile library project which aims to educate the said youth about personal hygiene, good manners and right conduct within and around the Roxas Boulevard area. The group went around Manila to look for schools that could help by giving learning aids and other instructional materials.

The UST Junior High School (UST JHS) responded to the call through the UST JHS Student Council and the UST JHS Readers' Club in partnership with the UST JHS Library and other student organizations. The donation drive was launched on October 1, 2018. With the help of various sectors, the UST JHS was able to provide several boxes of textbooks, story books, and learning kits that contain school supplies. The donations were forwarded to the PNP before the 'Undas' break.

On November 6, 2018, the police officers visited and handed certificates of appreciation to the UST Junior High School for its outstanding contribution to the success of the mobile library project. The certificate was received by Mrs. Ma. Victoria L. Torres, Assistant Principal; Mr. Anthony C. Castro, School Secretary; and Ms. Bernadine Ann V. Obial, JHS SIMBAHAYAN Coordinator.
